HEALTH NOTES (supplied by Agnes Grider)

Swimming Lengthens your life! What better way to cool off in the summer than a swim in a cool pool, lake or sea? Here's another reason to take the plunge: University of South Carolina research reveals that swimmers are 53% more likely to live a long, healthy life than couch potatoes and –most surprising—49% more than avid runners! The reason: Doing the crawl, breast stroke and even the doggie paddle gives you an all-over aerobic and resistance workout simultaneously-without any joint pain– which revs your health in a multitude of ways, including improving insulin sensitivity, boosting lung function and building muscle!

Don't swim? Try gardening! Regularly tending to a vegetable or flower garden makes you 30% more likely to live to a ripe old age, reports the British Journal of Sports Medicine. Weeding, planting, pruning and other garden-related activities keep you active enough to keep your weight, blood pressure and other good-health indicators in check!
