

Seventh Sunday of Easter

From the Pastors Desk

To be Christ for others

Receiving the Sacrament of Baptism is accepting God's invitation to love. God created us to be happy in him. But we abused our free will and turned away. Despite this, God never stops pursuing us in love, calling us back to him. Baptism makes it possible to experience eternity with him, a joy unlike anything we've ever known. Baptism also helps when we become aware that our lives are out of control. The sacrament is a kind of death. And, unless one lets their old life die, there is no possibility of new life. In the sacrament, God pulls us out of the death of our old lives and gives us life anew. But, this is only the beginning. Now that we have accepted the call to relationship with God and have put on Christ, now that we have been marked as his own and incorporated into the people of God, we must go out and be Christ for others.

Reflections

As Baptized Christians, we have been entrusted with the message Jesus gave to us. As the Father sent the Son to spread his message, so has the Son entrusted us with the mission to continue to spread this message. What is this message? Take some time to reflect on what Jesus said and did. Try to write down what Jesus was trying to teach us. In your own words, write the message you are to be spreading. Consider how you are doing that and how you could be more effective.
