IN THE CHURCH

Twenty-eighth Sunday in Ordinary Time

October 9, 2016

First Reading: 2 Kings 5:14-17

Elisha cures Naaman of leprosy, which convinces Naaman that there is only one God. Naaman then asks to take some loads of soil from Israel, so that he can worship and make sacrifices to one true God on his own land.

Second Reading: 2 Timothy 2:8-13

Paul reminds Timothy that Christ rose from the dead so that many people could be saved. Paul was being treated as a criminal and kept in chains but says, "There is no chaining the Word of God!" Paul also says, "if we die in Christ, we will live in him. But if we deny him, he will deny us."

Gospel: Luke 17:11-19

Jesus cures ten lepers, but only one returns to express gratitude for being healed. Jesus is disappointed that only one gave thanks to God, but tells that one, "Your faith has been your salvation."

The Sacredness of Human Life (Part I of II)

This weekend the Catholic Church in the United States celebrates Respect for Life Sunday as Christians are invited to examine the splendor of human life; and the approaches that are taken to uplift all human life born and unborn. This includes people whom we may never know, those of other faiths, individuals of political beliefs different than our own, people who hurt us, and lives labeled the unborn. In his address in December, 2014, Pope Francis stated, "by opening ourselves to life and serving life, we experience the revolutionary power of love and tenderness, inaugurating a newer humanism: the humanism of solidarity, a humanism of life."

Any vision that obstructs the sacredness of human life leads to an implausible defense that human life is respected under all circumstances. A healthy approach to "Respect for Life" positions is initiated in childhood since it is in these years that a child's character is shaped and formed; therefore, it must be impressed upon children that all human beings (born and unborn) are creatures of God and not means to ends, or exist for the purpose to fulfill personal needs. The child who shows little respect for parents, teachers, and authority figures steers oneself to a lifestyle that disrespects human life in greater capacities as he/she reaches adulthood; whereas the child who develops a healthy vision of life begins to see God's presence in all life (born and unborn). This prospective nurtures the dignity of every living person and comprehends a thorough picture of "Respect for Life Issues" rather than the limited view that exists in so many people.

One area that has plagued our society with "sins" against human life pertains to the treatment of children. Young people are bombarded with messages contrary to the Gospels. In his address to the Bishops on April 16, 2008, Pope Benedict XVI declared, "Children deserve to grow up with a healthy understanding of sexuality and its proper place in human relationships. They should be spared the degrading manifestations and the crude manipulation of sexuality so prevalent today. They have the right to be educated with authentic moral values rooted in the dignity of the human person. What does it mean to speak of child protection when pornography and violence can be viewed in so many homes through media widely available today? We need to reassess urgently the values underpinning society, so that a sound moral formation can be offered to young people and adults alike." Anytime life gets devalued through one of the capacities that go against the foundations of Christian morality, it lulls people away from their contribution to the common good; therefore, church and political figures should be encouraged to stand for an ethic that defends life at all costs.

The Gospels put forward the message that the most significant teaching of Jesus is the sacredness of human life. Jesus never hands down the death penalty to anyone, but leads people to believe that violence begets more violence. He also combats discrimination in sex, race and ethnicity as he makes known that this mentality constitutes a grave injustice to the dignity of the human person. Jesus continuously upgrades the self-image of people (especially foreigners) as he challenges the status quo against sins of complacency, which is an example that should be followed in homes, schools, employment, and neighborhoods. Since the sacredness of human life is a major foundation of Catholic morality, enormous responsibility is attached to us to engender an honorable quality of life for the born and unborn; and not be oblivious to the fact that included in this obligation are the poor, illiterate, hungry, sick, mentally challenged, and homeless; as well as issues that degrade human life which pertain to abortion, education, housing, immigration and health care.

In that there are countless issues that involve the sacredness of human life, generous doses of understanding, charity, and sensitivity must be brought forth to those wounded through any injustices that have been experienced in "life issues" as well as those seeking forgiveness of serious infractions that have degraded the sacredness of human life. This generates a starting point that initiates a transformation that sets sights on creating a world shaped with respect for all (born and unborn). In his "Day of Life" address to the people in the UK on July 26, 2014, Pope Francis called all people of good will to cherish life, particularly life of society's most vulnerable as he called Christians to a renewed esteem of the human person and a more adequate care of life from conception to natural death. Let us do likewise.

*In Christ's Love,
Fr. Bob*

Here is the Inaugural Address from President Mary Kate Vowells:
Good afternoon, Fr. Bob, Dr. Ross, faculty, friends and students. My name is Mary Kate Vowells. It is both an honor and a privilege to be inducted today as the St. Patrick School Student Council President. St. Patrick School holds a very special and important place in my heart. I'd like to express sincere congratulations to all of our student school leaders that were inducted here today into the Student Council. We are off to a very exciting school year. In every grade at St. Patrick's, there are highlights.

Kindergartners will be visiting the firehouse and learning to read and write. First graders, you'll be perfecting your reading skills while spending time with older and very cool friends, your reading buddies. Second graders, you'll be making two very important sacraments, your First Reconciliation and First Holy Communion. Our entire school enjoys seeing you all at our May Crowning Mass in the spring. Third graders, you'll be emulating our Saints as you learn about what makes them holy and introducing us to these special, historical figures at the All Saints Day Mass. Fourth graders, you are downstairs this year and changing classes for the first time! Good luck to you as you embark on your remarkable adventure learning all about our great state, New Jersey. Fifth graders, I challenge you to grow that reading caterpillar as long as it's ever been! Enjoy making all of those holy rosaries for our Haitian friends in need. Sixth graders...Welcome to the St. Patrick Middle School. The 7th and 8th graders welcome you and we're happy you are with us. Together the entire middle school will enjoy our annual trip to Broadway to see Wicked, form our fun leadership teams, and work collaboratively on our play we'll be producing in the spring.

Dr. Ross and faculty...may God bless you as you begin another school year here at St. Patrick's. You are our everyday leaders. We thank you for your dedication to us.

This school year is unique because it marks the 145th birthday celebration of our school. Let's make it a celebration to remember! Each day we can celebrate our love of Jesus, love of others, and love of learning. God calls us to treat others as we would like to be treated. To the leaders of our school, let us make a true and dedicated effort to be kind and emulate Jesus each and every day this year. I'd like to end my speech with the following words from the newly canonized saint, St. Teresa of Calcutta...

This school year..."Let us always meet each other with a smile, for the smile is the beginning of love."
