14th Sunday in Ordinary Time

Let us strive to live according to the Spirit, not the flesh.

Have you ever noticed what occupies our minds and what guides our life? Perhaps it is the latest commercial for a new car. Perhaps it is the quest for the latest technological gadget. Perhaps our moods are affected by the wins and losses of our favorite team. We can be so easily swayed by a powerful speaker, a recent social movement or by what's trending on social media.

Rarely will we find fulfillment in any of these. The tech gadget will become obsolete, the fashions will change, the news will be forgotten, the great athlete will age and the topic of the hour will fade into history.

In what, then, should we place our trust and our energy? Saint Paul reminds us not to live according to the flesh, but according to the Spirit. And where does that Spirit always lead us? To Christ. And where does Christ always lead us? To the Father.

What occupied Christ's life? Did he come into this world seeking fame and authority? No. Zechariah noted that this great king would be meek, entering his reign on a simple donkey. This king would banish the sword and the chariot and proclaim peace to the nations; as a result, His dominion would be from sea to sea ... to the ends of the earth. Christ came to bring peace. He came to proclaim the message of God's love and mercy. He sought to challenge the ideals of the Pharisees, to reach out to sinners and to love the outcast. Such attributes can only find their fulfillment in a heart that is humble.

What occupied Christ's prayer? First and foremost, He gave praise to the Lord of heaven and earth. He acknowledged all that God had done, and His authority over all his creation. This was sincere, vocal prayer – a model for all His disciples to follow.

What occupied Christ's message? Even in His term of address, Christ made clear that He was a son to His Father – obedient to the Father's will and caretaker of His message. And that message was dominated by inclusion, peace, forgiveness and love.

So what, then, should occupy our life, our prayer and our own life's message? How will we be remembered by our family and friends? How will we be judged by our God? Are our days spent preoccupied with the minutiae of life, or are they occupied with seeking peace and showing mercy? Is our prayer dominated by words of praise or petitions for favors? Do our words echo the Gospel message or do we abandon that Gospel in our speech and actions?

If, in all meekness and humility, we place our trust in the Lord, then truly we will find that His yoke is easy and His burden is light. In Him, we will find peace.

Prayer

Dear Lord,
Thank You for teaching me
to be generous as You have been generous with me.
Thank You for showing me that all I am and have are gifts from You and that these gifts from you, Lord, are meant to be shared.
Show me the joys of generosity.
Help me to understand that others,
perhaps unknown to me,
depend on me for help.
Remind me that my world,
my parish, needs "Good Samaritans"
to heal the wounds of our times.
Make me a gift to others in Your name.
Amen.
