All of us have experienced complete exhaustion. We have reached the end of our road; we're at the limits of our ability to cope. It seems impossible to go on. Yet, we must go on, and we do, in the face of everything we somehow survive. In moments like these we live our finest hour. We triumph. If we can hold firm to the deep-rooted tree of our faith, when we one day encounter mighty storms from the gates of hell, these torrents and winds shall not prevail against us. Holding on, no matter what, we shall triumph.

This Week's Readings:

*Jeremiah 23:1-6 ~ Messianic reign
Ephesians 2:13-18 ~ All united in Christ
Mark 6:30-34 ~ Return of the disciples*

COME AND REST

This Gospel reading is a fantastic antidote to burnout in the life of Christian discipleship. It challenges any of us who have adopted an ethic of busyness, productivity, and efficiency, whether we have meant to or not. It is a reminder that Jesus wants us to remain human beings and not "human doings" when it comes to following him. Yes, we are called to feed the hungry, care for the sick, visit the lonely, etc., but we MUST stop working sometimes and go away "to a deserted place and rest a while." Dental hygienists are invited to do this. So are third-grade teachers, truck drivers, video game developers, and retired folks. Jesus needed to get away sometimes, and he recognized his apostles did too, so why wouldn't we?

This doesn't mean we have to go off to a retreat center in a desert and remain in silence for a week at a time. Our deserted place may be the corner of our bedroom with a candle where we can sit down once a day for a few minutes before the kids are awake. It might mean a stoop downtown near our office where we rest for five minutes at lunchtime (even though the city is bustling around us). It might be a coffee shop we visit on the weekend where we can read a book, write in a journal, or talk to a trusted friend. Wherever we find a place that feeds our soul, that is a place where we can rest, tell Jesus "all that we have done and taught," and allow God to refresh and restore us so that we can go out and continue our work.

As fully human himself, Jesus respected the rhythms of the human body. There are times to eat and sleep, and there are times of work and rest. There are times when we are called to feed others (physically or otherwise), and there are times when we need to be fed. Jesus showed us
