FOURTH SUNDAY OF EASTER
April 22, 2018

The Good Shepherd laid down his life to share with us his risen life.
John 10:11-18

I Am the Good Shepherd

Laura Bell is not your typical college graduate. After graduation she took a job as a shepherd in Wyoming. Some of her friends thought she was crazy. But Laura wanted a challenge. Well, she got it. She worked eighteen hours a day, seven days a week. Her days began at dawn and ended at sunset. All this time she was completely alone, except for her dog, her horse, and 2,000 sheep. Once a week someone rode out across the hills to bring her food, mail, and rifle shells. Laura's job consisted of keeping the sheep together, moving them about for food and water, and protecting them from wild animals. "When you're out there all alone," she said, "there's no one to correct your mistakes. So you keep doubly alert for dangers, like rattlesnakes; and you don't do dumb things with your horse."

Laura said one of her joys was the weather. It was also one of her biggest headaches. The weather determined how the sheep were going to behave and what her day would be like.

One morning a group of sheep decided to break away from the main herd. Laura said she spent the rest of the day tracking them down. Just when she found them, a thunderstorm drenched her and the flock. She spent that night shivering in a wad of soggy blankets.

The story of Laura Bell gives us an insight into just how hard the job of a modern shepherd can be.

Ancient shepherds had to work even harder. This was because they had no horse, dog, or rifle to help them with their job. All they had was themselves.

The ancient shepherd's dedication to his flock inspired the biblical writers to speak of God as a shepherd. God's dedication to Israel was like that of a shepherd. Thus the psalmist sings:

"The Lord is my shepherd; I have everything I need... Even if I go through the deepest darkness, I will not be afraid."
Psalm 23: 1, 4

What should be our response to all this? First, it should be one of gratitude to Jesus. For through his death and resurrection we have been saved from eternal death and raised up to eternal life.

Second, our response should be one of profound openness to Jesus. For Jesus is present in our midst right now, continuing his work of salvation.

Jesus is indeed the Good Shepherd promised by God. Jesus not only laid down his life for us 2,000 years ago, but also continues to dwell in our midst, and communicates to us his own risen life.
