- Each night (Monday through Thursday) read for a minimum of 15 minutes in the novel of your choice.
- In your log book, head the page with the date, book title and pages read.
- Write a 2-3 sentence summary about what you read.
- Select one response question to answer about what you read. You should select a different response question to answer each day until you have answered each one.

Read and Log

Friday, Saturday & Sunday

- You need to complete only ONE Read and Log response over the weekend. IT MUST BE NONFICTION!
- Select an article that interests you from a newspaper or online news source (see attached list of appropriate sources).
- Cut out the article and paste it in your reading log. You can fold it if it is too long.
- Head your log with the date you logged, article title, news source and date of the article.
- Write a 2-3 sentence summary about the article you read. Think about how the author used the 5 Ws when writing the article.
- Answer one of response questions. Don't repeat a response question until you have answered each one.
- NOTE: You should find articles that interest you or have some impact on you (either locally, state, nationally, etc.). I included sources from many news agencies to give you a range of difficulty levels from which you can choose. Make sure you can understand the article before you glue it in and attempt a response. Try to vary the subject matter you read about. For example, don't always write about sports or entertainment).
