Palm Sunday of the Lord's Passion

While the season of Lent continues until the evening Mass on Holy Thursday, Holy Week begins today with Palm Sunday and concludes with Holy Saturday. Each Palm Sunday includes a processional Gospel reading that recounts Jesus' final entry into Jerusalem. In Luke's account, Jesus enters Jerusalem mounted on a colt, signaling the fulfillment of Zechariah's prophecy that the Messiah comes not as a conquering warrior king but in peace and humility. The tension between Jesus and the religious leaders of Jerusalem is highlighted in the overwhelmingly positive reception that Jesus received from the crowds and the Pharisees' contrasting reaction, "Teacher, rebuke your disciples." Although most of the details in the life of Jesus from the Last Supper to his burial in the tomb were fixed elements within a received tradition, each of the Evangelists emphasized some aspects of Jesus' passion and death in order to address their historical and theological concerns. For Luke, his Passion narrative emphasized that the political authorities and the religious authorities of Jesus' day found him innocent of the charges, leading to his crucifixion, to argue for the legitimate status of the early church with the structures of the Roman Empire. If Luke was unable to demonstrate that Jesus was innocent and that he did not deserve capital punishment, then the early church would have been seen as an illegal organization.
