THE EMPEROR'S HEIR
A STORY ABOUT HONESTY AND INTEGRITY

An Emperor from China had no children and needed a successor. Thousands of children from across the kingdom came to the palace and were surprised when the Emperor exclaimed he was going to choose one of them to be his successor. He gave them all a seed. They were to go home to their villages, plant the seed in a pot, and tend it for a year. When they return in a year, the Emperor would judge their efforts and choose his successor.

Ling received his seed and returned to his village. His mother helped him to choose a pot and put some soil into it. Ling watered his pot every day faithfully. Once a week, the children in Ling's village would compare their plants. After a few weeks, there were signs of life in all pots but Ling's pot. After a few months, the pots really came to life. Some had trees starting to grow, some had flowers and some had leafy shrubs. Ling had nothing growing in his pot, leading the other children to make fun of him, mock his efforts and tell him he didn't know what he was doing. Ling continued to water his pot every day refusing to give up.

The year passed and it was time to return to the palace to show what had grown and for the Emperor to decide on his new heir. Ling was anxious. His pot showed no signs of life. "They won't know that I've watered it every day, they'll think that I'm lazy and laugh at me." His mother looked him in the eye and explained that whatever the consequences were, he had to return and show the Emperor his barren pot. He was being honest. The seed didn't grow.

Ling and the children entered the palace. The plants looked magnificent and the children were wondering which one the Emperor would choose. Ling was embarrassed as other children looked at his lifeless pot and laughed at him. They told him he didn't know what he was doing and mocked him.

The Emperor arrived and started to make his way through the crowd, looking at the many impressive trees, shrubs and flowers on display. The children puffed their chests out and tried to look as regal as possible, hoping that they would be chosen as the heir to the empire. Then the Emperor came to Ling. He looked at the pot then he looked at Ling. "What happened here?" "I watered the pot every day, I swear, but nothing ever grew." Ling muttered nervously and felt foolish.

The Emperor grumbled to himself and moved on. After a few hours, the Emperor finished his assessment. He stood in front of the children and congratulated them on their efforts. "Clearly, some of you desperately want to be Emperor and would do anything to make that happen, but there is one boy that I would like to point out as he has come to me with nothing. Ling, come here please." "Oh no," thought Ling.

Ling slowly sauntered to the front of the group, holding his barren pot as the children whispered to each other and made fun of him. The Emperor held up the pot for all to see and the other children laughed and mocked him louder.

The Emperor spoke "A year ago, I gave you all a seed. I told you to go away, plant the seed, and return with your pot. What you did not know is the seeds I gave you all were boiled so they wouldn't grow, but I see before me thousands of beautiful plants and only one barren pot. Integrity, courage, and honesty are more important values for leadership than proud displays of oneself and falsehoods. Therefore, Ling will be my heir."

ST. ANNA SCHOOL—BABY WIPES NEEDED

St. Anna School needs donations of baby wipes for the school—but specific brands: Target, Walmart or Huggies Non-Scented wipes. They are needed for students with many allergies. Please contact the school office for information. Donations may be dropped off at the rectory or the school. Thank you.

STB OPEN HOUSE

St. Bernard's CCHS will host an Open House on Tuesday, February 5th from 9am to 1pm. We encourage you to come tour the school, visit classes, talk to parents, and see what STB has to offer. Financial Aid is available. For more information, please visit stbernardscchs.org.

I'll never forget this story I heard of a kindergarten teacher asking the class if they knew what the Super Bowl was and one kid said "it's when the Patriots play their last game of the season"
