CHILDREN'S LITURGY NEEDS HELPERS

The St. Bridget Children's Liturgy Team will meet Friday, April 5 following The Way of the Cross. All those interested in helping out in this ministry are invited to attend.

My Dear people of God,

Today we celebrate Laetare Sunday, that is Latin for 'rejoice Sunday.' In the middle of our Lenten journey, we are invited and given a moment for rejoicing. All the readings this Sunday provide us with the reason for this rejoicing; namely, the goodness of God. The response to the Responsorial Psalm, invites us to simply, "Taste and See the Goodness of the Lord." This goodness is above all expressed in His mercy. The gospel reading today as well as the one for next Sunday present to us vividly the infinite goodness of the Lord as expressed in His mercy to sinners.

The gospel reading today presents us with one of the best known and loved parables of Jesus, the parable of the prodigal son. It probably could even be better referred to as the "Parable of the Loving Father." It has been said that the entire gospel message and mission of Jesus is contained in this parable. Tons of books have been written on this parable and above all, many lives have been touched and transformed by it. The core message of the gospel and mission of Jesus is summed up in one verse in the Letter to the Romans: "...God demonstrates his own love for us in this: While we were still sinners, Christ died for us" (Romans 5.8). This core message is illustrated in the parable of the prodigal son in today's gospel.

The parable of the prodigal son reveals to us what is required of us to tap into the goodness of God so that we can rejoice. First and foremost, we must know and realize that the reason for rejoicing is the goodness of God our Father. God is good All the Time! In Baptism we were born again and became God's children. As we all know, once a child always a child. The prodigal son knew this! Secondly, the prodigal son only had to acknowledge his failure, and humbly return to his father who would receive him with open arms. That is what we call repentance. All it takes for us to experience God's love and mercy is repentance (the core message from last Sunday).

The parable of the prodigal son is regarded by some as being unfair in favor of the wild son and to the disfavor of the faithful older son. The younger son seems to get away with murder! But in reality that is what mercy is all about and all of us need mercy. No wonder the Psalmist in Psalm 130 says: If you, O LORD, should mark iniquities (our sins), O Lord, who could stand..? Some have also argued that this parable enables bad behavior. But that is far from the case.

The prodigal son behaved badly- there is no doubt about it and it needs to be said. The parable does not hide it. The gospel reading states that: 'he came to his senses' and that says a lot: it not only reveals that he came to a profound awareness of his sins and failures, but also of the pain he had caused to his father, that is why he went on to think he no longer deserved to be called a son (of his father). This is a true manifestation of repentance, a turning away from sin and return to goodness.

The prodigal son deserved to be punished, he knew it and even asked for it. Yet as we all know, in that state punishment is the last thing one needs. In fact, he had already received his punishment when his friends deserted him and in the hunger, loneliness and degradation to the level of pigs that he had experienced. This is what God does for us when we repent and turn away from our sinfulness. In His goodness, God welcomes us back with open arms, cleanses and renews us.

My dear brothers and sisters, this parable by no means gives us a license to sin. Rather it shows us that if we do sin, we can and should come back to our loving and merciful Father. Our past can be overcome and we can make a fresh start. This is a great lesson for us today. Therefore as we embrace this second half of the Lenten season let us like the prodigal son, with confidence approach our loving and merciful Father.

God bless you,

Fr. Simon Peter

Catholic Social Teaching Principle: Call to Family, Community and Participation

Human beings are social by nature. We, like the early disciples, are called to come together as a community whether that community is our classroom, workplace or family.

The second reading reminds us that we have been called to a “ministry of reconciliation”.

The gospel makes the “forgiveness experience” concrete in a wonderful story.

The process of reconciliation is sometimes a long journey. Consider the years it took for the people of Israel to get to where they are in the first reading – eating the yield of their own land.

The father in the gospel story wants his son back. The father waits a long time. The son eventually comes back. All is forgiven. There is a celebration. But, the story does not end there. There is still need for healing in the family. The father desires to bring in the elder son as well. His plans is “all inclusive” – to bring the whole family together. It is not easy.

Forgiveness is possible because the father does not get stuck on blame and judgment. This is not to say he has not been pained by the actions of his younger son. He is pained by the attitude of the older son, but still he goes out to invite him in to the family celebration. The word of God invites us to apply this story not only to our interpersonal relationships, but to relationships between communities of people – people who are different than ourselves. It is not easy. However, it is possible with the grace of God. God passionately desires it. God passionately calls us to keep working to heal relationships.

MAKE BENEFICIARY FORMS WORK FOR YOU

The beneficiary forms associated with life insurance, retirement accounts, certificates of deposit and other financial arrangements are often plain-vanilla, one-size-fits-all documents – especially forms made available online. But what if the forms don't fit your planning needs?

You should contact your account manager or customer service representative if you wish to name a trust as beneficiary, or make a designation that goes beyond just the name of a person or organization. For example, it's possible to name us to receive part or all of your IRA in exchange for a charitable gift annuity payable to a surviving spouse or others. But special instructions would need to be included on a separate page attached to the beneficiary form.

Friends sometimes wish to leave us a particular dollar amount from their IRAs but find that the beneficiary forms permit IRAs to be divided up only by percentages or fractions. One solution is to state that we are to receive a certain percentage (25%, for example) “not to exceed $50,000” (or some other dollar amount likely to be less than the stated percentage).

It's important to ensure that the company understands and consents to any special beneficiary language, and to have your attorney look over these documents as well. Our staff will be glad to provide you with appropriate language for naming us as one of your beneficiaries.

Forgiveness And Greed: Reflections On The Prodigal Son, by Ngozi Nosike

The story of the prodigal son (Luke 15:11-20) is a story of forgiveness, second chances and retracing one's footsteps. It is the story of a wayward son who returned home after squandering his inheritance, to meet a very loving forgiving father that he had once wronged.

In my world, I often imagine myself as the father of the prodigal son and I marvel at how lenient the father was towards his son. Were it to be me, I would give that son a piece of my mind. I wouldn't spare him, Oh no I wouldn't. I might probably start with "Junior, so you have decided to join us again eeh? What happened to your great business plan, the great life that lay ahead you? And what's that pig smell lingering on you?" I might also find it amusing watching him grovel seeking mercy.

Eventually I might forgive him though. However, that does not mean I would forget. No way would I forget! and if I did, it would take a while. I would keep rubbing it in; "Ehen Junior, come ooh, we are short of wheat by a bag, please let's cut your next month salary to make up for it ooh, you owe us that."

And that is me, imagining, if it were me. I also keep wondering how his father just forgave him, with no conditions or requirements. He did not stop there, he restored him to his former glorious position and celebrated his return. Now that is quite generous, and that is our heavenly Father- generous. He chastises, He forgives, forgets and clothes us in splendor. He does not keep a record of wrong, because love does not keep a record of wrong and our God is love. And that is the very essence of the parable, the unquantifiable love of God.

Another side of this story however has got me thinking, the side of the prodigal son. I wonder to myself, what happened to this son that's he could not invest his money wisely in some profitable venture. It is obvious he participated in running his father's business, so why couldn't he continue when he left home, he could have opened up his own complex, he had his father's name, his share of all he had worked for, which I presume is a lot of money, but he just didn't think. Instead he went drinking and partying and after women, forgetting that someday his money would run out. It is different when a son decides to leave home for a different part of the country to open up a new branch, in which case the aim is expansion, and father and son are still working together. No, this son decided that it was time to leave home, he was done and he wanted to be on his own. But in my opinion, that son was just plain stupid. If he had been wise, the story would have ended differently. Jesus could have told it as the story of the wise son.

But who ever got wise from leaving the fountain of wisdom? and that was when I saw the missing message that was only inferred. All that the son was came from the father- his wisdom, his business acumen, his substance. The moment he took his cut and left, he left the source of all he had, it was only a matter of time before he ran out.

It is the same with us and our heavenly Father. All that we are, and all that we can ever be stems from him. Packing up and leaving with the reward of all we have worked might not seem such a bad idea. Wanting to be independent of the father might not seem wrong. The truth, however, is that you might not make the best of decisions away from the fountain of knowledge. This is one place where independence from parents is not a sign of maturity, but total dependence is the ideal. We all need a daily dose of God to make decisions, to thrive, and to sustain our substance.

Abide in me, and I in you. As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine; no more can ye, except ye abide in me. I am the vine, ye are the branches: He that abideth in me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit: for without me ye can do nothing. -John 15:4-5
