SEVENTH SUNDAY OF EASTER
Fake news and peace

Peace is possible only when truth is readily available. This is why Pope Francis has dedicated this World Communications Day to a reflection on the polarizing effect of fake news. False information creates and fuels division, bleeding its consequences into both personal and group behaviors. By contrast, a “journalism of peace” promotes understanding and unites us around common values and goals. Maybe it’s time to stop clicking on inflammatory headlines and refuse to forward the stuff that riles up our indignation. Propaganda is hardly new. Opt for something truly novel: good news!

TODAY’S READINGS: Acts 1:15-17, 20a, 20c-26; 1 John 4:11-16; John 17:11b-19 (60). “Consecrate them in the truth. Your word is truth.”

FEAST OF MATTHIAS, APOSTLE
Let go and love

Jesus’ Last Supper discourses are surely some of the most poignant passages in John’s gospel. You can almost hear the urgency in Jesus’ voice as he exhorts his disciples to carry on and always love one another. Just love one another. Three simple words, yet how difficult they are to live at times! Or at least we make them that way. We prefer to hold on to our anger, resentment, or that small slight from this morning. We are entitled to feel the way we do—right? Yet, how much easier it is to simply let the negative feeling go. It’s as easy as opening your hand. Today, when you find yourself holding on to anger, visualize opening your hand. Let it go. Love one another.

TODAY’S READINGS: Acts of the Apostles 1:15-17, 20-26; John 15:9-17 (564). “You did not choose me but I chose you.”

MEMORIAL OF ISIDORE

Help bring a poor farmer to market
Seventy-five percent of the world’s poor—900 million people—“live in rural areas in conditions of extreme poverty,” according to a March 9, 2006 Vatican statement on agrarian reform. In the absence of internationally guaranteed protections, the Vatican says, “deprivation, exploitation, lack of access to the market, and social exclusion become more acute” among people who work the land. The Vatican urged rich countries to correct policies, such as farm subsidies and trade barriers, that adversely affect the economies of developing countries, and it condemned the concentration of productive farmland in the hands of a few. In honor of Saint Isidore, take steps to support small farmers by purchasing organic and fair trade products and frequenting local farmers’ markets. Learn more about the Catholic rural ethic at atholicrourallife.org.

TODAY’S READINGS: Acts 20:17-27; John 17:1-11a “I glorified you on earth by accomplishing the work that you gave me to do.”

EASTER WEEKDAY

Take the long view
The proverb “This too shall pass” may come to mind while struggling through a tough period in life, such as a time of transition or a personal financial crisis. We hope and trust that the pain of these situations is temporary and will eventually pass. Though not often invoked in good times, this proverb can also refer to the passing of good things in our life. It might be, for example, the death of a loved one or the departure of a close friend or mentor, as the early church experienced when Jesus and then Paul prepared to leave behind their earthly lives. It reminds us to be open to what life brings and draw comfort from the fact that God’s love remains constant.

TODAY’S READINGS: Acts 20:28-38; John 17:11b-19 (299). “They threw their arms around Paul and kissed him, for they were deeply distressed that he had said that they would never see his face again.”

EASTER WEEKDAY

Let’s attend the reunion
The Catholic Church’s approach to ecumenism has come a long way since the Second Vatican Council. The previous Code of Canon Law (from 1917) decreed: “It is illicit for the faithful to assist at or participate in any way in non-Catholic religious functions” (no. 1258). That changed with Vatican II and the new Code of Canon Law in 1983, and in 1993 the Pontifical Council for Promoting Christian Unity stated that “Christians may be encouraged to share in spiritual activities and resources, i.e., to share that spiritual heritage they have in common in a manner and to a degree appropriate to their present divided state” (no. 102). We still have a long road ahead, but the road map is clearer.
TODAY’S READINGS: Acts 22:30; 23:6-11; John 17:20-26 (300). “I have given them the glory you gave me, so that they may be one, as we are one.”

MEMORIAL OF JOHN I, POPE, MARTYR

In search of what unites us
Many hopeful moments occurred during the impressive funeral and memorial rites for Pope John Paul II in 2005. Perhaps one of the most remarkable was the gathering of so many leaders of different religious traditions and denominations from around the world. This was a sign of hope that all believers, of whatever corner of the world, could recognize that God is more important than our differences and that, in fact, God longs to gather us all into one. There is one God, the God of all. Let us pray that we will have the faith and humility to let God be God.
TODAY’S READINGS: Acts 25:13b-21; John 21:15-19 (301). “Simon, son of John, do you love me more than these?”

EASTER WEEKDAY

Mind your own business
Celebrity gossip is so pervasive that it’s hard to avoid. How much do you know about the personal lives of the “glitterati”? Sure, these people invite the public into their lives for profit, but scrutinizing—even relishing—the foibles of strangers is a slippery slope. Jesus frequently reminded his followers to focus on themselves—their own failings and how they could improve—instead of worrying about those around them. Are you too quick to judge the actions of others?
TODAY’S READINGS: Acts 28:16-20, 30-31; John 21:20-25 “What if I want him to remain until I come? What concern is it of yours?”

May 12-13 - The Ascension of the Lord
On this Sunday we celebrate Jesus return to his Father, which marks the time when he turned over the ministry of proclaiming the Gospel to us, his disciples. Jesus tells his disciples, “You will be my witnesses...” As Jesus’ disciples today, what is the witness we give? What is the evidence that we
