Five Loaves and Two Fishes

"There is a boy here who has five barley loaves and two fish; but what good are these for so many?" John 6:9

I wonder if the role of the unnamed boy is too often overlooked when considering the feeding of the 5000. It was not some super-wealthy individual who stepped forward with donkey trains loaded with food. It was a young boy who was willing to bring the small offering of his lunch and place it in the hands of the Master. The faith demonstrated by the unnamed boy is instructive. He did not look at his lunch and the size of the crowd, and determine that he would be laughed at, or that it would be a useless gesture and find a quiet spot to discretely nibble his lunch.

Have you ever asked yourself, “what good could I possibly do?” We see the situation in the world today, we see the state of the community, society, and even the church, and ask ourselves what our little contribution would be against the need. We are all called to be faithful to God, to trust in God and to give all we have to God. We are not the ones who make the gift expand to meet the need. We are the ones who trustingly provide all that we have; it need not be large, merely given with an open heart.

We come to the Lord and present Him with our humble gifts of prayer, love, and service. They of themselves are like the five loaves and two fish. We present them to the hands of our Lord, He is able to multiply them to the service of the Church.
