“And you, Bethlehem . . . from you shall come a ruler, who is to shepherd my people Israel”

The men who came from East of Jerusalem, in the region of Iraq or Iran, to find “The newborn king of the Jews” were not Jews. They studied the history of the cultures of the world, including the Israelites. Their observations lead to Jerusalem where they inquired about where they could find the child. King Herod, who was not a Jew, but a Idumaeen who married Miriam, a princess of the Hasmonean Dynasty, had no information for them, but he was alarmed at the thought that a child had been born who would replace him as king. He sent the men from the East to find the child so he could have him killed. They followed the star to a cave in the hills sloping down from the small village of Bethlehem. They believed the child was the Messiah foretold in the writings of the Israelites. They were men of faith. They paid homage to the child and presented him with gifts. Do we have the wisdom to believe that Jesus is our Savior.

The income tax site is run on the second floor of the Terrebonne Main Library every Tuesday during tax season (February 5 - April 9) from 9am - 3pm.
