Fourth Sunday of Lent

Gospel:
Luke 15:1-2, 11-32
The vivid parable of the Prodigal Son, on the Father's patient love

March 31, 2019

The elder brother

Without doubt, the most captivating parable is the one about the "good father", often called "the parable of the prodigal son". It is the younger son who is the main focus of commentators and preachers. His return home and the unbelievable welcome he received from his father have moved Christians of all generations. But the parable also speaks about an older son, a reliable fellow who stayed at home with his father, without imitating the licentious life of his brother in faraway places. When they tell the older son that his father has organized a lavish party to welcome the lost son, he gets very upset, understandably. His brother's return doesn't make him happy, but furious. "He was angry then and refused to go in" to the party. He had done his duty and never left home, but now he feels like a stranger in his own house.

The father goes out to invite him with the same tenderness with which he has welcomed his brother. He doesn't shout or order. With humble love "he tries to persuade him" to come into the welcome home party. It's then that the son explodes, making his resentment known. He's spent his whole life fulfilling his father's orders, but he hasn't learned to love as his father loves. Now all he knows how to do is demand his rights and put his brother down.

This is the tragedy of the older son. He's never left home, but his heart has always been far away. He knows how to fulfill commandments but he doesn't know how to love. He doesn't understand his father's love for that lost son. He doesn't welcome or forgive him, he doesn't want to know anything about his brother. Jesus ends his parable without satisfying our curiosity: does he enter the party or does he stay outside?

Caught up in the religious crisis of modern society, we're used to talking about believers and non-believers, about practicing Christians and fallen-aways, about marriages blessed by the Church and couples living together. While we keep classifying God's children, God keeps waiting for us all, since God isn't property of good people or of practicing Christians. God is Father of all.

The angry protest of the elder brother invites us to examine our own attitudes to outsiders. Do we think that we deserve better from life than other people? Do we practice the faith as a duty, while resenting the mercy that God offers to sinners who repent? Or are we trying to form a welcoming community that is willing to understand and accompany whoever wants to join the family of the church, no matter where they come from? Are we people who put up walls rather than build bridges? Do we offer help and friendship or do we look on others with suspicion?
