FOURTH SUNDAY OF LENT

This Sunday is known as Laetare Sunday and is a Sunday of joy. Lent is half over, and Easter is enticingly near. This Sunday is called "Laetare Sunday" since its mood and theme was one of hope and rejoicing that Easter is near. The entrance antiphon for the day still begins with the Latin word "laetare" and the vestments worn by the celebrant are rose-colored, not violet.

REFLECTION ON THE PRODIGAL SON PARABLE

Recently I read one of my favorite parables the parable of the Prodigal Son. Many times when I read this famous parable I ask myself, "Who am I in this parable? The repentant younger son, or the resentful older son?" In my youth I tended to think of myself as the younger son; one who lived a life of debauchery and rebellion from God only to come back groveling. As I've aged, things are beginning to shift. I've begun to think of myself more as the older son who is riddled with disappointments and resentments. If we think this way, it seems to me that we are failing to really reflect on the Father and all the good things He has given us. In the parable of the Prodigal Son, isn't it the father who acts the most virtuously and lovingly? When I read of the Parable of the Lost Son, why don't I ever think of myself as him? Don't we have him to learn from the most? Especially when it comes to authentic fatherhood? An article from catholicdish.com by Sharon O'Connell-Wilson made a wonderful point. She explains that the father in the parable can be thought of as "prodigal" (which means extravagant) in the sense that he gives lavishly. And she's right. The father gives everything he can to both of his sons. He gives in such a way that is totally selfless. Do we give in this radical way? Are we as selfless as the father from this parable? What do we as fathers have to learn from the Father of this parable?

GOSPEL REFLECTION

In this Sunday's Gospel, both sons have misunderstood their father's limitless love for them. The younger son believes that love means allowing him the freedom to do as he pleases. The elder son believes that he must earn the father's love by being dutiful. But, the father demonstrates that he loves them equally. In this Year of Mercy, we must realize that we need God's forgiveness. Let us use this time of Lent to re-encounter the Lord who reveals the loving embrace of his Father.
