Q How is Christ present during our liturgical celebrations?

A Matthew's Gospel ends with Christ's assurance that he would always be with his community, even to the end of time. From the time of Jesus' physical departure from our midst, the Christian community has pondered the varied ways that Christ continues to be present. In section 7 of the Vatican II document on the liturgy, known as Sacrosanctum Concilium, the council addressed this issue. Starting with the statement that "Christ is always present in his Church, especially in liturgical celebrations," the document specifies four ways in which Christ is present. Christ is present in the "person of the minister" presiding at the celebration. By extension, Christ is present in all those who minister in a multitude of ministries during the celebration. Christ is present "most of all in the Eucharistic species," namely the bread and wine.

Christ is present also "in his word, since it is he himself who speaks when the scriptures are read." Lastly, Christ is present in the community who "gathers to pray and sing."

Our challenge is to attune ourselves to the multiple aspects of Christ's presence. When we focus solely on Christ's presence in bread and wine, we miss the richness of his presence in the Word, in the ministers, and in those gathered. How attuned are you to the various ways that Christ is present when we gather? Reflect on how differently we would react if we took each of these presences as seriously as we have traditionally taken Christ's presence in the eucharistic species.
