HURRICANE EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS

Hurricane Season is upon us! Strive to be self-sufficient in an emergency. Do not let complacency lead to disaster. Make sure you have an emergency supply of water, non-perishable food items, necessary medications and prescriptions, a full tank of gas and some ready cash in the event of an immediate evacuation request.

Hurricanes, with their advanced warning, are not the only emergency that requires our readiness. Other types of emergencies involving the multitude of hazardous materials carried on trains, trucks and ships to our busy port, may catch you off guard.

Touch base with your elderly or infirm neighbor and ask if you can assist in obtaining their emergency supplies. Perhaps you can offer to help them register at Smart911.com in advance to ensure that medical personnel have access to their important medical information immediately.

Little things can make a difference: a manual can opener, a flashlight, fresh batteries, a blanket, a pillow, a floodlight, important documents, etc.

May God keep us safe, and may any emergency find us prepared!
