"A Thorn in the Flesh: Why We Suffer"

Saint Paul conveys a unique and powerful perspective on suffering. What he called a "thorn in the flesh," was a suffering so great that it burdened him, prompted him to beg God for relief. But it is in this sort of suffering that we most acutely understand God's love. When all falls away, we have him, we cling to him and we are saved. And when we bear suffering leveled by others and offer it to Christ, we absorb it, we take it out of circulation, and ease the burden for others. -Bishop Robert Barron from "Word On Fire"

July 8: 14th Sunday in Ordinary Time

Ez 2:1-5 / 2 Cor 12:7-10 / Mk 6:1-6a

Do we believe that Jesus can do anything? The gospel today ends with the fact that Jesus could not perform any mighty deeds in his hometown of Nazareth because of the lack of faith. So often when I pray I constrain Jesus. I don't ask for the big things: rather than asking for a complete cure for a friend with cancer, I pray that God will guide the hand of the surgeon, or that he will strengthen my friend as she deals with chemo or radiation treatments. But why don't I ask for Jesus to cure the cancer, take it away, heal my friend completely. I pray for the ordinary means of healing, as if God cannot miraculously cure, as if God isn't bigger and can do much more than I can hope or imagine. Let us always keep our eyes fixed on the Lord and trust in his grace and mercy and not be afraid to ask for the big things.

Summer is here! Racheal Carson believes that “If a child is to keep alive his inborn sense of wonder, he needs the companionship of at least one adult who can share it, re-discovering with him the joy, excitement, and mystery of the world we live in.” Is there some child you would like to take for a walk and help her/him discover the wonders of God’s creation this summer?

Catechism Corner: Mortal and Venial Sins in the Catholic Church—Part I

In the Catholic Church, sins come in two basic type: mortal sins that imperil your soul and venial sins, which are less serious breaches of God’s law. The Church believes that if you commit a mortal sin, you forfeit heaven and opt for hell by your own free will and actions.

Three conditions are necessary for mortal sin to exist:

Grave Matter: The act itself is intrinsically evil and immoral. For example, murder, rape, incest, perjury, adultery, and so on are grave matters.

Full Knowledge: The person must know that what they’re doing or planning to do is evil and immoral. For example, someone steals a postage stamp, thinking that it’s only worth 50 cents. He knows that it’s sinful, but if he’s unaware that the stamp is rare and actually worth a $1,000, he’s not guilty of mortal sin but of venial sin.

Deliberate Consent: The person must freely choose to commit the act or plan to do it. Someone forced against her will doesn’t commit to a mortal sin. For example, a woman told she’s giving a minor shock to another person who in fact is administering tortuous electrical jolts is not guilty of a mortal sin (although she may feel guilty if she finds out the truth).

Venial sins are any sins that meet one or two of the conditions needed for a mortal sin but do not fulfill all three at the same time, or they’re minor violations of the moral law, such as giving an obscene gesture to another driver while in traffic.

Venial sin only weakens the soul with sickness but doesn’t kill the grace within. Venial sins aren’t deadly to the life of grace, but like minor infections in the body, if casually ignored and left untended, may deteriorate into a more serious condition. For example, someone who tells so-called white lies commits venial sin, but if he does it long enough, it’s much easier for him to be tempted to tell a big lie later on that would be a mortal sin, such as cheating on a test or on his income tax return.

Remember: A mortal sin is the complete turning away from God and embracing something else in place. It’s deadly to the life of grace, because it insults the honor of God and injures the soul of the sinner. Mortal sin is like a malignant tumor or a critical injury that’s lethal to the spiritual life.

Next week Part II: The remedy the Catholic Church offers for sin - the Sacrament of Reconciliation (Confession).

The Narrow Gate -Bishop Robert Barron

Jesus warns, "Enter through the narrow gate; for the gate is wide and the road broad that leads to destruction, and those who enter through it are many."

A question that people have been asking from time immemorial is this: "Will only a few people be saved?" Heaven, hell, salvation, damnation—who will be in and who will be out?

We have remained, understandably enough, fascinated with these issues and questions for a long time. But the official answer of the Church is that we don't know. We are clearly warned about the real possibility of damnation. We do indeed know that there are many in heaven, for the saints are formally declared to be so. But there are no anti-saints in the Church; there is no one whom the Church has formally declared to be a denizen of Hell.

Therefore, without succumbing for a moment to anything-goes presumption, we are permitted to hope that all people might be saved. Indeed, St. Paul writes to Timothy: "God wants all people to be saved and to come to the knowledge of the truth."

So pray, hope, and strive to enter through the narrow gate.
