Sixth Sunday of Easter

The love of God is universal, reaching out to everyone. The Holy Bible gives account of God’s love to humanity from the foundation of the world. John in his writing defines God as love.

First Reading of today begins with some Jews taking extreme position that the members of the church should hold traditional position for the salvation. The passage tells us that the Christian spirit does not come by itself. One has to strive towards it by seeking the Divine Will of God and then by embracing the final decision of the authority of the Church. Seeking the Divine Will of God on the matter, Paul, Barnabas and some of the others were sent to Jerusalem to consult the apostles and the elders.

Today’s Second Reading tells us that the Christian spirit at work through some of the descriptive words that are given to us. John saw no temple in the city, for its temple is the Lord God the Almighty and the Lamb.

According to the Gospel of John, the way one loves Jesus is by being in relationship with both him and his Father. The relationship serves as a dwelling or home for the disciples.

The words of this Sunday’s Gospel were spoken by Jesus just before his departure to Heaven: the “departure” that he accomplished on the wood of the Cross. Jesus teaches his disciples, he prepares them for the coming separation; above all, he prepares them for a better future. For his “departure” will be beneficial to all the people. But, in order for this future to be better, there is a condition: we must love Jesus. If they love Jesus, then the Father will come into them along with the Son and also the Holy Spirit. But what is it to love Jesus? Quite simply, to love Jesus is to love one’s brothers and sisters, to love one’s neighbor. St Paul clearly tells us that Jesus himself is “the first-born among many brethren” (Rom. 8:29). If we truly love Jesus our brother, then we will want nothing other than his happiness, his glory, his eternal peace. After his “departure” to Heaven, Jesus does not return immediately. He will return to earth in the fullness of time, meaning, at the end of time. Meanwhile, with the Father, he sends his Holy Spirit to the disciples. The Holy Spirit helps them to be patient and waiting to prepare for the coming of Jesus and the Father.

Today’s Gospel reading from St John made reference to the Advocate, the Holy Spirit, whom the Father would send in His Name. Such was fulfilled on the day of Pentecost when the Lord Jesus breathed the Holy Spirit upon His disciples. At that moment, the official ministry of the Holy Spirit had its beginning on earth. In making known to us the teachings of the Lord Jesus Christ, the ministry of the Holy Spirit is twofold. The first goal is to build up the One, Holy, Catholic and Apostolic Church. The second goal is to sanctify us in Christ so we may be purified and transformed in the likeness of Jesus.

Jesus promised us the Paraclete, the third person of the Godhead, to help give God’s peace to us. The word Paraclete is also translated as Advocate and is explained as comforter. But the Paraclete does more than to comfort. He is the mediator, defense attorney, the one who stands by us in time of need.
