Dear Community Members,

Once again, we have been blessed to experience one of the Church's greatest Holy Days, All Saints, as well as Her greatest memorial for the faithful departed, All Souls. Attendance at the All Saints evening Sung Mass was quite impressive. I'm also very glad to be rid of my dreadful cold that laid me low a while ago that time. If you remember, I could hardly get through Sung Mass on 10/24.

As I said last Sunday, I'm very glad to be back with you again. I flew to Indianapolis 10/25. A former parishioner family of mine just celebrated the arrival of their 9th child(!) and they flew me to Indy to baptize him. It's always a great privilege as well as a pleasure to baptize a child. As we know, Baptism is the only sacrament necessary for salvation. Of course, it follows, then, that Baptism is really the most important Sacrament we have.

The Baptism was quite a celebration. The parents are belong to the Knights of the Holy Sepulchre so all, including me, were vested in our regalia. This included those invited to the baptism as well. I guess it could be considered a "first" for the Knights.

The remainder of the week was pretty much a social whirlwind. My former pastor is somewhat of a celebrity in Indy. He served as Vicar General for 15 years, I believe, but, apart from that, he just has this way about him that makes most people just fall in love with him. He was a very good pastor to me.

My time away culminated in a celebration of Sung Mass in the Extraordinary Form (what other form could I possibly celebrate?) at his parish. Mind you, there hasn't been a public EF Mass there since the Novus Ordo went into effect, so this was really something. His church is quite large and seats 800 people. I was surprised and very excited to see an impressive gathering of people for this Mass. The count was 389! The schola and servers came from my old parish and many folks, both from my old parish and Monsignor's parish, St. Luke, were there. In fact, a respectable number of folks went to Mass twice that day.

I'm so pleased to know that our little All Saints children's celebration went off without a hitch. Yes, things are quite different now, here at St. Patrick Church. But knowing you as well as I do, I know that we'll get used to things and keep moving forward. After all, it's the Mass and our salvation that matter most, right? Even so, I'm very glad that when I submitted our yearly schedule to Fr. Vu, I had the foresight to include our normal Sunday brunches and various other meetings. I'm sorry to say, I didn't think about those few extra things that we have every so often, well, like the All Saints party. I'm so glad we all rolled with the punches. Sometimes, that's what life is all about, my children and my friends.

Father Magiera
